Syracuse University Technology Leadership Council (TLC)

The Syracuse University Technology Leadership Council fosters collaboration among information technology professionals who are engaged in meeting the network, computing, information, and communications needs of the University's academic, research, and administrative departments. TLC members monitor technology trends in higher education, identify and prioritize IT initiatives that support the University's core missions and business requirements, and make recommendations for long-term information technology strategic priorities.

Syracuse University's Technology Leadership Council usually meets on the fourth Thursday of every month except June and August. The TLC documents and meeting minutes are posted in SUshare (https://sushare.syr.edu/display/tlc/TLC+Meetings)

Council Chair: Larry Quaglia, lsquagli@syr.edu (mailto:lsquagli@syr.edu)
