DIVERSITY

On Sept. 28, Chancellor Kent Syverud announced the creation of a new University-wide Chancellor's Workgroup on Diversity and Inclusion. Since then, more than 100 members of the campus community nominated themselves or another person to join the workgroup. The nomination period ended Friday, Oct. 9.

Overall, the mission of the new Chancellor's Workgroup on Diversity and Inclusion will be to develop solutions on how to further create a more diverse and inclusive climate at the University. Members of the workgroup will create an institutional diversity strategy and align it with the Vision and Mission contained in the University's new Academic Strategic Plan.
